SAVANNAH, Ga., December 26th, 1851.—Mr. WM. H. LIPpirt, Dear Sir:—It is with pleasure I acknowledge the wonderful effects of your Medicine for curing Diarrhoea or Bowel complaint, as I am satisfied it was the means, under God, of saving the life, first of my Child and then of my Brother.—

ginals of the day. As my Brother was given up by two of the most eminent Physicians in this place, Drs. Richardson and Gregg, and when I consulted the latter as to the propriety of trying it on him so low, he said I might to satisfy myself that I had left nothing untried, but he did not think that Medicine would be of any use to him. But thank God he was mistaken, as we saw the salutary effects in 24 hours, and in ten days he was able to be out of bed. I remain yours, very truly and gratefully,

The Mosquito Hunt.-A PARODY. Not a sound was heard, but a horrible hum,
As around our chamber we hurried,
In search of the insect, whose trumpet and drum
Our delectable slumbers had worried.

We sought for it darkly at the dead of night,
Our coverlid earefully turning,
By the struggling moonbeam's misty light,
And our candle dimly burning.

No useless garment confined our breast, But in simple night dress and elippers, We wandered about like spirits distressed, Or the sails of practical skippers. Short and few were the words we let fall.

Lest the noise should disturb the mosquite.

But we steadfastly gazed on the white-washed wall.

And thought how we had been bit, ob!

We thought as we rose from our restless bed,
And relinquished our pleasant pillow,
That we would not get in again, until he was dead,
And we were secured from his bill, oh 1

But half an hour seemed to elapse,
Ere we met with the wretch that had bit us,
And raising our boot gave some terrible slaps,
That made the mosquito's quietus. Quickly and gladly we turned from the dead, And left him all smashed and gery; We blew out the candle and popped into bed, Determined to tell you the story.

We are indebted to the sprightly Washington Sta for the following amusing anecdote of Mike Walsh and McDonald, the newspaper carrier: Some years ago Mike visited Washington for the first time, where his fame had preceded him, and consequently he was well received by all who sought his acquaintance—all, we may say, but one. That one was poor McDonald, now no more, at that time a carrier of the Sun newspaper. He had heard much of paid your fare nor given the clerk your place of des-Mike, and being told that the New York hero was in tination, and you are old enough to know the custown, assiduously sought him out, until at length he found Mr. Walsh in one of the hotels. Mike was pointed out to him, but his size and appearance did not come up to Mac's notions of the man, and he swore it was not the simon pure. Nevertheless, he would be introduced, and was; and after shaking hands, he eyed Mike closely, and said :

"Are you the celebrated Mike Walsh of New "I don't know anything about my celebrity, sir, but I am Mike Walsh of New York." "What the hero of Tammany Hall he who battles

"Blast if you aint the real Mike! Give us you paw, old boy, and let's go and have the best drink on the strength of it that can be found in Washington." To this Mike and his companion assented, and they took a hearty " refresher," and a tiger laugh over the scene that had passed; but never were there better friends in the world than McDonald and Mike Walsh

City Life. In a speech recently delivered by Francis P. Blair. before the Agricultural Association of Montgomery county, Md., occur remarks upon the superior advan- lustration: tages of a country life, which in the main, are true and worthy of very grave consideration. In reference to the effects of city life upon the human constitution, he remarks: head of population: "Families constantly residing in Paris soon become extinct. The effects of this mortality are observed to be more active upon males than fery ends of the earth. This, adds the editor, is the miles." What is true of Paris is true of every city in the world. There is not probably a man in London, Paris, New York, or Philadelphia who can say that his great grand father, his grand father, and his fa-ther, successively, lived and died in the city of his residence. There is no such thing as a survivor of three fashioned hard shell hunkers, is an idea stolen from generations that have undergone the decomposing Dr. Isaac Watts. Thus sung the Doctor upwards power of a city atmosphere, assisted by city pursuits. of a hundred years ago: A city, then, may be said to die out one in a hundred and fifty years, so far as regards those rooted generations that live, and move, and have their being only within a city's precints. Whoever, then, would have succession in his family-that desires to transmit his name and wealth by perpetuating his race—should at some period of his life take his leave of walls, and pavements, and crowded thoroughfares, and fix his abode in the midst of rustling foliage, green fields, clear streams, and sweet air, untainted by stagnation in the walled streets, and alleys, and sewers.

In reference to its effects upon the development of ndividual ability, his remarks are no less worthy of mature consideration. Men and mothers may obstinately persevere in disregarding the truths of human history—in clinging to the hope that their cherished objects of affection may be excepted from the common rule, and may possess ability without the exposure nessary to its development. But it is to be feared that they will be mistaken, as have been the generations that have gone before us, and that trial is still the horny way to triumph, and suffering the inseparable condition to success. Upon this subject he proceeds : There is another observation in regard to cities which induce thoughtful men, who take pride in their Chills and Fever, Dyspepsis, Costiveness, Liver Compassion, Jaundice, Sick Headsche, Scrottals, Salt Rheum. Fevers of all kinds, Loss of Appetite, Obstructed and painful Meastration and all lingering diseases.

As a Female Medicine they act like a charm, and what the schools by the number of competitors, and the water of the directions, they never fail to cure the worst cases of Piles, after all other remedies fail.

They purify the blood, equalise the circulation, restore the Liver, Ridneys, and other Secretory Organs to a bealthy tone and action; and as an Anti-Billous Family Medicine they have no equal. Price 25 cents per box.

The system of publicity which at aches to every governmental act in the United States, diplomacy not excepted, is, we think. in the main right and proper, because it is but fair that the people, the real sovereigns, should be kept fully apprized of the fici l acts of their public servants; but it cannot be denied, that it has some evil results-more especialcharacter to official communications to other governments, since such communications, being invariably published, seem as much designed to gain popularity and applause in the nome market, as to opera e upon the foreign government, or governments to which they are addressed.

An exhibition partaking of this character, but cer-

The public-spirited and enterprising owners this splendid new packet gave a-what shall we call it,-a ship-warming Wednesday afternoon, at which a number of invited guests were pre-ent, and good wine and good fellowship were alike the order of the proposed modification. The Secretary will recomday. The gentlemen present were in good spirits, but there were no spiritual knockings, -while every one joined in admiration of the vessel and warm wishes for her success. The Surplus Revenue.

The right way to avoid the difficulties and dangers of an undue accumulation of the people's money in the hands of the Federal Government is by taxes until the receipts and the necessary expendiname of surplus revenue or land distribution-or lie debt, and no more. We are pleased to see that has issued a circular, in which he says, that, in consequence of the accumulation of money in the Treasury, the ensuing Congress will probably reduce the present Tariff. He therefore asks for intormation of the working of the present rates of duty upon the leading branches of industry of the country, and of the effect to be expected from the mend an enlargement of the free list by adding to it articles of general consumption, and articles alwide, and about as many feet high. She is of peculiar rig-is a large three masted schooner, the mizzenmast, ordinarily a small stick in vessels of this character, being the principal mast. She requires, however, only the same number of men to man her, as our ordinary packet schooners. Her accommodations are neat and tasteful, the cabin being well ven ilated, and fitted up. In short, her arrangements for the comfort of passengers, are on a scale commensurate with that improvement so perceptible in our packet vessels, as contrasted with those of former years. This schooner cost $21,000 : is named af ter one of our merchants, who, (in connection with the Captain, and the house of which he is senior partner,) owns a moiety of her; hails from this port, and is intended for the Wilmington trade. - Herald.

When but eighteen, a boy in age but a man in the strength and litheness of his well-knit frame, and a dauntless hero in heart, he entered the army serving under Gen. St. Clair. During a portion of his service he was stationed at Ft. The French Empire Again.

Our New York cotemporaries are again indulging in predictions respecting the duration of the present French Empire. The Times thinks it decidedly "on ts last legs." That journal says emphatically that, if a distance of forty leagues was put between the army and the capital, there would be a revolution. But a revolution where? Over all France? Not at all. A revolution in Paris, that is, an insurrec.

tion. We humbly put it that this cannot fairly be called a revolution. Louis Napoleon may not choose, perhaps, to consider such an emeute, even if tempoarily triumphant, as a legal overthrow of his auhority; for, at best, it would be but the call of the Parisian population to abdicate against that which he has the approbative votes of nearly eight millions. He might, under such circumstances, prefer to retire to some important provincial town, and, by making it, for a time, his capital, teach Paris that she was not all France. The borgeoisie would very soon liscover, in that event, that trade was dull, and that t was a losing concern to live in a city under martial law, and tormented by insurrections, so that strangers were driven away. In a word, if Louis Napoleon, in case of a successful insurrection in the capital, determined to fight it out elsewhere, and if the army remains true to him, we see no reason why ewarded

For there is less difference between the Gaul of the nineteenth century and his ancestors in the six-Burke, twenty years before the first French revolution, warned the world that the "ferocity of the Parisian mob" had not altered with time, but was still, though latent, as virulent as ever. The September massacres confirmed his words in his own life time It is a popular error to suppose that the Reign of Terror is a new thing in French history. Similar periods of proscription, similar alternations of bloody factions, have marked various eras in the annals of Paris. The struggles between John of Burgundy and the other princes of the crown, at a break, or work a pump, upon any part of its route. period cotemporary with the invasion, under the late Every laborer upon that road must be a voter, at Plantagenets, were followed, in a few generations, first by the struggles of the League, and, at a latter fluence there would be in favor of a power already lay, by the tumults of the Fronde. In truth, Paris has always been a turbulent city. The reason is plain. In that capital, the national characteristics of the Gaulish race are developed to exaggerations, -forced, as it were, into a morbid vitality, by the hot-bed of gregarious and stimulating habits. But Paris is not France, though a type of it, to a certain extent, as also a powerful and commanding leader of public opinion in the provinces. In other times rulers, who were supported by the people at large, could do without the capital. Whether a ruler can do so now, and whether Louis Napoleon is that ruler, are the questions to be solved. The problem of French politics is really a profounder one than the wise-acres of the press think. This decisive manner of prognosticating the future of France is a proof of inflated ignorance, and not of a comprehensive knowledge of the subject, as journalists would have their readers suppose. The man, who should predict an eclipse, without a preliminary calculation of it, would be considered only a charlatan, even though he might happen to guess the truth. But, in fortelling the future of France, one has not even as many data as in calculating an eclipse. The only fixed fact," indeed, on which one can even begin this prognosticating, is that, if the Empire is overthrown, all the Metternichs that ever lived will be at fault to say what will come next. Will it be a Repulie, an Orleans dynasty, or the restoration of the old Bourbons? Will it be a dictatorship, such as really existed under Cavaignac, or a virtual though not nomin al one; such as flourished under Barras? Will the aubourg St. Antoine he more quiet under a monarchy, or the faubourg St. Germain cease to plot under republic? In a word will Paris ever be any thing but turbulent ? For one we doubt it. Meantime who has the best claim to rule? Cleary he who has most proof that he is acceptable to the nation. But France, not Paris is the nation. Of all the men of the day, Louis Napoleon has the largest vote to show. We do not see, therefore how Americans, who profess to believe in the right of the majority, can consistently denounce the Emperor as ruling without right -Phila Bulletin.

IMPORTANT TREASURY CIRCULAR. - Modification of the Tariff.-The following circular has been addressed by the Secretary of the Treasury, to a number of prominent New York merchants, which indicates that he intends to recommend to Congress some alteration of the present Tariff: TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Sept. 20, 1853:

ich the present duty should be reduced.

doubtles be the least question. Resides these objects in the proposed reduction of the tariff of such an arrangement as will afford proportional benefit and relief to every portion and in- that any plan of reform which could be adopted the labors of the custom houses. This object will be consulted by adding to the free list articles of which but for this consideration might properly e made subjects of revenue.

I am, very respectfully, JAMES GUTHRIE. Secretary of the Treasury.

About three weeks ago, a very interesting event took place in England, which was of the nature of a common place, every day occurrence, but which is suggestive of the grandest associations, and calculated o awaken a lively emotion in the mind of every reador of English history. The affair was conducted unter the red flag, and the chief actor in it was the aucioneer. The late George Robins ought to have lived ong enough to conduct so remarkable a sale. It was that of the furniture and effects of the mansion of Daylesford, well known as the seat of the celebrated WARREN HASTINGS.

At the bare mention of such a circumstance as now powerful does the past rush upon us, bringing back the recollections of so much of England's greatness and glory during the long and chequered career f that remarkable man! Doubtless many articles were put under the hammer which were brought by e first of Nabobs from the India he had subdued, to lecorate the homestead which it was ever the dearest wish of his heart to re purchase and re-build. For it vill be remembered that Daylesford had passed out of ossession of the family at an early day, and the snot where the young WARREN had gamboled in infancy ad become the property of a London merchant, in the pelancholy decline of its former proprietors.

How unremittingly and fixedly the design of re-in esting the estate with a magnificence worthy of the roud name of Hastings, was kept in view by the realest man that ever bore that name, Macaulay has lendor of the East are so vividly represented in con- bered that the forgeries on the Ohio Star espoused under circumstances so romantic and pecuaken place in the Indian Empire since she set sail rom its shores with her future husband, that it is difficult to recognise that she was alive at a day within the recollection of many now living. Yet is this true and the immediate effect of one of her acts has only a clause of her will that the late sale took place, er's. whereby the Penates of the conqueror of India have tered abroad. The mansion after having been restorat last become again the abode of strangers, and all that remains of that once princely House is the historic fame of its latest representative. Sic transit gloria Notwithstanding the obloquy which Hastings had to endure, and the grand combination of eloquence and learning with which he was assailed before the British Senate, the opinion of the world has at length settled down into an estimate of his character. which if not altogether favorable, is by no means harsh. That he was an unscrupulous man cannot be doubted that he possessed, in a supereminent degree that doggedness of purpose which distinguished Jackson their bills similar to that which has so long been in afterwards, and which recked not of consequences where any cherished object was to be accomplished, ufactures its own bills. Every step in the process tions reverence as great, and the results of his life were, perhaps, more important to England than those of any other man, Wellington not excepted—who has illustrated her annals during the eighteenth and nine-teenth centuries.

From his knees up he was brilliant in well harmonized colors, tapering off to a very evident lightness about the region crowned with one of Oakford's last heart-crushing tiles. The trousers began at the waist in a very cheerful good-humored color, but from the kness down they were of raven blackness, as if the hero had been dipped into a vat of ink, or as if the legs had put on mourning for the melancholy death of the debilitated wits. We saw the same individual at the Horticultural Exhibition, in the evening, among congenial squashes, pumpkins and green things of the earth; but he evidently regarded himself as among and not of them; for he paid them no attention. He had no eyes or eye glass for any thing but the ladies, whom he seemed to regard as dem foine specimens, while he viewed himself as a first premium to be presented for their animated competition. His legs were absolutely killing and in sable majesty they strode through the halls as if at every step they crushed a captivated virgin heart. These black legs, paradoxical as it may seem, are the crowning achievement of fashion. In vention can go no further, at least in that direction.

Philadelphia Ev. Bulletin. LAUNCH OF THE GREAT REPUBLIC. - This magnificent ship, the largest clipper in the world, will be launched from the ship yard of Mr. D. McKay, at East Boston, on the 4th of October. Her hull is now nearly finished, and is daily inspected by visitors from all parts of the country. While in the course of construction, she has been visited by over 30,000 persons, during work hours, and perhaps by as many don't you come along !" more on Sundays and holidays. She is a wonderful vessel, and every time we look at her we cannot but admire the genius and skill which have produced her. She is between 6 and 7000 tons stowage capacity, and is the longest and sharpest vessel ever built in this country. She is 325 feet long, 53 wide, and deep, with four decks, and is of a model so perfectly beautiful as to seem of perfection itself. Mr. feetly beautiful as to seem of perfection itself.

McKay, her owner and designer, intends to sail her himself, that is, to transact her business; and she will be commanded by his brother, formerly captain of the "Sovereign of the Seas." When fitted out, she will proceed to New York, and there load for San Francisco.—Boston Atlas.

It would be preposterous, of course, to suppos erest in the country, there is another which ought would put an end to the manufacture and circulaterest in the country, the disregarded—I mean, to abridge tion of bad money. Knavery is not to be suppressed so easily. There will always be counterfeiters so long as there is money. All that can be hoped is a general consumption, and articles paying little du- greater or less alleviation of the evil; and this, it would seem, might be most readily effected by rendering the difficulties of counterfeiting greater than they now are. There is reason to believe that a large share of the scoundrelism is due to the almost entire absence in this country of any preventive measures-or, to speak more strictly, is due to the facilities offered by the system of manufacturing genuine bills, which has crept into use among our panks. These institutions not being the direct sufferers, are less solicitous on the subject than they perhaps ought to be; but it is in their power to do nuch towards a reform, the want of which is likely o be felt with increasing severity every year .--Great as the evil now is, there is every probability that it will become vastly greater before long, un-less means be speedily taken to arrest it. Mechancal dexterity is at present essential to the accomplished counterfeiter, but the developments of science promise to render that qualification superfluous; and, by and by, any maladroit jail bird who chooses to dip into the books, will be able to produce fac-similes of notes, without requiring the aid perty of Mr. Washington Homer, living near Drainesof either engraver or penman.

Counterfeit notes of that kind are exceedingly difficult of detection; and it seems a wrong to the community to place the onus of loss from such notes upon it .-There is even some injustice involved in the case where it suffers from bills printed from spurious plates on genuine banknote paper. That is almost the sole means ignorant persons have of forming their opinion of bank bills.

New York, September 25, 1852.

Gentlemen—A young lady of my acquaintance had been for as long time very much troubled with worms. I advised her to try Dr. M'Lane's Celebrated Vermifuge. She accordingly purchased and took one vial, which caused her to discharge an unusually large quantity of worms. She was immediately relieved of all the dreadful symptoms accompanying this disease, and rapidly recovered her usual health. The young lady does not wish her name mentioned; her residence, however, is 320 Fifth street, and she refers to Mrs. Hardie, No. 3 Manhattan place.

P. S. Dr. M'Lane's Celebrated Vermifuge, also his Liver Fills, can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores in this city. Its Purchasers will please be careful to ask for, and take none but DR. The partial failure of the crops in Europe will make a brisk demand for breadstuffs and provisions, at remunerative prices, so that, upon the whole, the indications are that the coming commercial season will exceed in prosperity any that has preceded it. Our imports their way with the tidings of rendezvous. and exports for the next year will probably reach two hundred and seventy millions each way, or an aggregate of five hundred and twenty-five millions. The public are interested very deeply in this matter. Their convenience requires a more suitable location than the heart of the town, adjoining the homes of respectable families, and directly opposite the School House, where numbers of children of both sexes, are daily assembled for hours together.

If I am not misinformed, the objection to the present Jail, on the part of the Public, was that it is a nuisance to the whole neighborhood. We find the following sketch of the history of the ast of the Government of Franchis gentleman in the last number of the Raleign to prevent the rise in name, is thus of on by the London Times:

Mr. Busbee graduated with distinction at the University of North Carolina, and was admitted at an early age to the practice of the law. He rose rapidly in his profession, and was justly regarded, at the time of his death, as one of our soundest and ablest law-yers. As an advocate he had no superior among men I the same age with himself, while he was nearly always associated in important cases with his seniors who had attained the front rank in the profession.—

He was most attentive to the interests of his clients, the loaf of two killogrammes, (about 4 lbs.,) instead laborious in the preparation of his causes, and ardent of eighty cents, which had been the rate in August. in his pursuit of truth and justice.

Mr. Busbee was no seeker of public office. He was too modest to adopt any course in relation to office which might leave the impression that he desired but at the same time no man served his party more bread at that price, even though they suffered a loss, faithfully or labored more constantly for its princi- which would hereafter be made good by the Treasples than he did. It is, in short, row in this community among persons of all classes to produce a fictitious cheapness, not by augmentand parties. The loss is indeed a heavy one to his family, to the bar, to his friends here and in all quarters of the State, and to the State itself, for she had no more promising or builliant son.

He has been cut down in the vigor of manhood and at a period when he had most to hope for, and most to attach him to this present life. But regrets are un-availing—Expressions of sorrow can have no effect tirely on the government, instead of leaving them to upon the "dull cold ear of death." The recollection of his many virtues will long be cherished by his brethren in all sections of the country; and we of friends; and though to those near to him by the ties of affinity and blood the bereavement is most stunning and agonizing, still they have the consolation of knowing that the gloom of the grave had no terrors for him, and that he has left to them all the legacy of a WILD RICE.—Mr. T. W. Higgins, of this city, has sent us a box of wild rice; gathered in the country beyond St Anthony's Falls, Minnesots. It is a popular article of food among the Indians, and resembles the ordinary rice, being somewhat longer and narrower in the grain. Though a rarity here, this species of rice is very abundant on the margin of the Northern lake and the upper branches of the Mississippi. The water fowls feed on it, as well as Indians, traders and hunters. The grain is nearly as white as common rice, and it is almost as autritious. It may be used for bread or its paddings. It may be used for bread or its paddings. It grows to a height of about twelve feet.—Piel. Light

The French Government, it appears, have a large amount of grain in its granaries, which it increases by purchases abroad. The policy of the Government has been to protect the people by being in the market for the sale of grain at cost, whenever it is deemed necessary to open the ports for the import of grain from foreign countries. This is a humane proceeding, but whether it will prove to be an effect-Government may, in some measure, account for the dullness of the grain market at Havre and Paris .-It seems, however, that any government interference in the laws of supply and demand must signally

The New York Albion, the British organ in this country, is not at all satisfied with the present aspect of the Eastern Question, nor upon the vicillating and timid policy which has governed the action

The journals declare that the Porte has only insisted on a few unimportant verbal alterations in the terms of agreement proposed by the representatives of England, Russia, France and Austria, and known to have been accepted by the Czar; but from a perusal of this document itself, which in point of fact yields almost entirely to the original demands of Russia, it is apparent that the Sultan could only consent to them, if convinced that he was abandon ed by his allies. And the conviction that his allies have abandoned him is said to prevail extensively a Constantinople, and to render it not improbable that some outbreak of popular indignation may ensue, and still further complicate affairs. At best we fear that a peace can only be patched up for while. The struggle between aggrandizement and resistance can only be deferred, for come it must: and in the meanwhile there is so much insincerity in all the parties to the pending negotiations, that it is lifficult to comprehend them way through their mazes. Turkey is of course excepted from this sweeping charge: with her it is a question of national existence, of life and death. But with some sense of humiliation, we must confess that we cannot exonorate our own Government. It has of the wife of D'Israeli, the British writer and undoubtedly put on a many-faced mask, now cajoling the Liberals in the House of Commons by declarations of its solemn purpose to uphold the independence of Turkey, and now sanctioning a mode of settlement, wherein no provision whatever is made for what its own organ in the House of Lords announced as a sine qua non .--A rupture with Russia may have been thus averted, and the Manchester men may have been conciliated; but we doubt whether the prestige of the British name in European politics has not been seriously Chobham reviews and Spithead maclear that a powerful party exists in England, ready to enforce a peace at any price policy. And in respect to this it may be observed that growing difficulties seem to attend the administration of public affairs, in consequence of the general break-up of political sects into fragments that it is impossible to re-unite increased by the consequent prominence now given to individuals and cliques and combinations, who and which were formerly merged in the breadth of party divisions. To meet these altered circumstances "all the talents" and all the principles are now leagued, rather than united; the result is found in just such an incongruous hodgepodge of proceeding, as might have been expected from such a union of incompatible men. By unceasing efforts to please everybody, the cabinet does but expose its own inconsistency; although it can scarcely be expected to please itself, since it is notoriously not of one mind."

The New York Daily Times. This paper has just completed the second year of its existence, and its enterprising proprietors have entered upon the third year with full confidence that their prosperity hereafter will be as complete as their success has been heretofore. We have no hesitation in saying that they richly deserve the success which has attended their enterprise. The following statistics given by the editors indicate strongly the prosperous condition of this concern: Very few persons have any idea of the magnitude of the business of a daily newspaper. The sheet found every morning on the breakfast table of which two cents is the paltry representative, sug gests no such scale of expenditure or of labor, as its proper and prompt preparation involves. Probably very few of those who have paid their shilling a week to the carrier of the Daily Times, or who have received it in return for their five dollars remitted by mail, have supposed that the mere cost of putting in tupe what it has contained for a year has been $30.174; or that we have paid for literary matter in the shape of correspondence, editorials, reports, &c., $24.456 during the same time. Our telegraphic intelligence alone has cost us over $7,000; while sums, and indicate, certainly, a much larger general business than the public usually ascribe to a daily newspaper. In this respect, as in all others, there has been a very marked advance in the New York press during the last ten years. Far more money is expended upon newspapers; they enlist more more labor, larger scholarship, and a far greater variety of talent, than ever before; their general tone is becoming year by year more elevated, and they are gradually preparing to meet that heavy responsibility which their increasing influence upon the public mind and the current history of the times devolves upon them. That they are yet what they should be no one will for a moment pretend, but there is, in our opinion, no other department of public effort which can show equal improvement within "The receipts of the Daily Times, from its sales and for advertisements, during the year, have been not far from $150,000; and in both these departments they have been far beyond the expectations of the proprietors. In both, also, they are steadily and largely increasing, and promise, at no distant day, not only to meet the large expenses which it has been the interest and the policy of the paper to increase rather than lessen, but also to leave a margin of profit large enough to satisfy the most san-guine expectations of those whom this point most ongerns.

TO THE RESERVE OF THE PARTY OF We close this article by briefly adverting to the chastisement he gave an editor for strongly criticising his performance of Richard III. The office of the editor was in Washington street where Propellor now keeps. Adams armed himself with a cowhide and watched Adams armed himself with a cowhide and watched his victim. Soon the unsuspecting fellow came down stairs, and Adams sprang upon him, exclaiming *The Lord has delivered thee into my hands, and I shall give thee forty stripes are con Sairty and I shall give thee forty stripes are con Sairty and I shall give thee forty stripes are con Sairty and I shall give the forty stripes are con Sairty and I shall give the forty stripes are considered to the control of the control give thee forty etripes save one Scripture measure.— Brother Graham keep tally. So saying he proceeded to lay on the punishment with a hearty good will. the mean time a large crowd had gathered around -When the tally was up Adams left the man, and addressed the crowd as follows: 'Men and brothers, my name is Elder George G. Adams, preacher of the everlasting gospel. I have chastised mine enemy. I go this afternoon to fulfil an engagement at the Provity. A maximum of price was one of the follies of dence theatre, where I shall play one of Shakspeare's the convention of 1793, but even then it was in a immortal creations. I shall return to the city at the Reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court and a measure justified by a reference to the state of the end of a week, and will by Divine permission, play Maebeth at the National theatre Saturday night, and preach three times on Sunday on the immortallity of the soul, the eternity of matter and in answer to the question, " Who is the Devil?" May grace and peace be with you. Amen.

Sad, indeed, are the scenes occasionally present ed in the hospitals of New Orleans. Thus the editor of the "Picayune." in a recent visit to some of the asylums temporarily established for the reception of children made orphans by the ravages of the epidemic remarks:

"Nothing more deeply impresses one with the extent and character of the infliction which has been laid upon us, than a visit to these benevolent institutions, wherein will be found many a gentle flower which was left standing by the ruthless scythe of the destroyer. In these institutions will be found the infant of a few days only, which, perhaps, was ushered into this world, while the relentless grasp of the disease was upon its lost mother. There too, are infants of a few months; little conscious of their own desolation and loneliness. There are children of two and three years, with a glimmering incomprehensive sense of their parentless condition, who, ever and anon, during the livelong day, call for their 'mammas.' Then there are children of larger growth, whose sad faces and occasionally tearful eyes show that they comprehend all too well their rreparable loss." Look over the list of great men who figured in the revolution, and it will be found that almost to a man they were country born and bred. Search the annals of the revolution in England from the reign of the 1st Charles to the 3d William. These were times that tried the souls of men in the mother country. Scarce a name appears that does not owe its celibrity to faculties grown in the country. The French revolution filled Paris with innumerable great men, the offspring of the provinces. If we scan our own quiet times, whence come the illustrious men who have filled the chief magistracy, and given fame to Congress and our State Legislatures? I do not know one that has not made his way from some rural district to the high places of the republic.—And so, too, it has been with our great merchants and mechanics who have flourished in cities. Trace them, and you will find that the impulse that gives them this lead brought them from the fields or some village to try their fortunes in the city. The men who thus build themselves up in the marts of business have generally the sagacity to see that life in the country is the natural state, that in the city an artifical existence; and if not too much possessed with the spirit of getting, which gain is too apt to endanged.

COURAGE OF A WIFE.—The London correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune relates the following anecdote statesman : "Mrs. D'Izzy, as the mob call her, showed an admirable instance of fortitude lately. Her husband wished to be conveyed in his carriage to the House of Commons, where he was prepared to make one of the Two thousand acres lying on the East side of Lumber his greatest speeches. After he had alighted he River and on the North and West side of the Fayetteville had walked some yards, when he heard a frightful scream. Mrs. D'Israeli had inadvertently left her land hand touching the hinge of the door, and the servant slamming it together, had crushed off a joint of Mrs. D.'s finger. She had the resolution to pretend nothing was the matter, so the husband went away in peace, and made a most eloquent oration, as the Lowrie Land, which will be sold in lots of one hunwhich he could not have done, had he known that dred acres each. she was carried fainting to the doctor's, and most severely injured, though her enthusiasm for her husband's fame enabled her to conceal her agonies. It was well-directed courage."

NEWSPAPER COMPETITION.—The Tyler (Texas) relegraph learns that a new paper is about to be established in that place, with a view to make a fair division of the profits derived from the patronage of that flourishing inland town. The editor of the Telegraph makes a very liberal proposition to his expected competitor for patronage. He says he will give up twothirds of his Tyler advertising to his rival, to enable him to make a fair start, as the commencement of such an enterprise is always attended with some difficulty and extra expense; and he then says the amount of that advertising is just twenty lines.

FOOLHARDINESS.—A London paper states that nan at Lowth offers to ascend the spire of St. James' Church, which is 298 feet from the ground, to regain the weathercock, but the church wardens refuse to allow him. The Stamford Mercury says that four or five ascents have been made within his memory, out of bravado or a drunken frolic. The most extraordinary feat of all took place on the 5th of May, 1818, when a man named Benjamin Smith, known afterwards as "Spire Smith," scaled the summit of the spire, drank his Majesty's health, threw down the bottle, danced a hornpipe, turned round the weather-cock several times, tied his neckerchief to the vane,

(where he left it,) and decended safely. NEW ORLEANS REVIVING .- The New Orleans Del ta, of the 14th inst, says :- "The streets appear to be thronged with people too; a busy crowd now promenade our thoroughfares from morning till his delivery to me, or his confinement in any Jail so that I night There are three times the number of people now that there were three weeks ago. We have o long been accustomed to walking through desert ed streets, that we are often in imminent danger of every now and then being run over by a dray, cab omnibus or other vehicle, or jostled into the gutter by the busy crowds that rush along the banquette we havn't got used to the new order of things yet. But where did all these people come from? they hived up all summer, and now swarm forth when the plague is gone; or have they come from abroad? We hope not the latter, for we do not wish to see our absentees return yet awhile."

The editor of the Clifton Courant has been on New York and purchased a new poetry pen that won't write anything else. The following is the result of Bynell's first attempt to write a prose article with "that pen :"

MAKING THE BEST OF IT. - A Yankee, out walking in Virginia, at Wheeling, while to himself a talking, experienced a feeling, strange, painful and alarming! From his caput to his knees, as he suddenly discovered, he was covered o'er with bees !-They rested on his eye-lids, and perched upon his nose; they colonized his peaked face, and swarmed upon his clothes. They explored his swelling nostrils, dived deep into his ears; they crawled upon his trowsers, and filled his eyes with tears. Did he vell like a hyena? did he holler like a loon? Was he sear't and did he " cut and run ?" or did the critter swoon? Ne'er a one! He wasn't scar't a mite he never swoons-nor hollers; but he hived 'em in a nail keg tight! and sold 'em for two dollars!

A singular train of events occurred in Cincinnati the other day. An old man, named Heritage was employed in painting the walls of a house, and fall-ing from a scaffold, he injured himself to such an extent that he had to be conveyed home. His fall frightened a horse attached to an express wagon, which ran off, and in his mad express wagon,

LAND FOR SALE.

THE subscriber offers for sale 1500 ACRES OF LAND, in the upper end of Roleson county, 25 miles S. W. of Fayetteville, and within two miles of the Stage Road leading from that place to Cheraw, S. C.

This land, with the improvements, has as many advantages as any ever offered for sale in this region of country.—For farming, the upland is inferior to none; and there is enough of it cleared to require the labor of eight or ten hands; and there is, besides, an extensive swamp, easily drained, and which, by trial, has proved equal to the best River land.

To Turpentine getters it holds out greater inducements.—

MR. OEO. W. JEWETT will open a School in this place on the first Monday of October next, comprising all the branches of an English and Classical education usually taught in the Academies and High Schools of New ich experience in the preparation TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.

R EV. WM. H. BOBBITT will open a School, in the town of Wilmington, on the first Monday in October next.

hree weeks since was wounded severely in his thigh, with a charp hook, opening a gash three inches in length and an inch or more deep. I tried various articles to heal it, but inflamation tetting into it caused large quantities of matter to collect, and the limb was quite stiff. A friend of mine asked me if I had tried the limb was quite stiff. A friend of hineasked me if I had tried the Mustang Liniment to which I replied in the negative, but thinking it might do some good, was induced to try it. I had only used one half bottle when the inflamation began to be removed and the wound to heal. Now it is entirely healed and the hair is growing over the wound, making it look as well as ever—Hoping that others may be benefitted by a trial of your valuble compound, I remain yours,

WILL YOU READ THE TRUTH ? MEDICINE must have merit, and great merit too, to stand the test of public opinion. No art of puffing can. galvanize a worthless article so as to keep it alive as a good Medicine, if it be not really so.

A good medicine will live, become popular, and extend its sales year after year, in spite of opposition The people readily find out its virtues, and the fame of them passes from mouth to mouth with more rapidity than newspapers can spread it. A living witness, testifying to the cure a medicine has made for him, is of far more service than any newspaper advertising. Vegetable Tincture, and its effects. Its praise is in the mouths of multitudes. The best men of our country give their testimony to its wonderful cures. Among the name Hon. H. Clay, Hon. Richard M. Johnson dent of the United States, with hundreds of others. Capt. Thomas Canot—brother to the celebrated physician of the Emperor of France—was cured by it of a disease of seven years' standing, after the skill of the Doctors of Europe and America had failed.

America had failed.

In fact the rich and the poor, young and old, in every place, in the city and country, find the same success attends its use.
